Promoting Student Learning and Care
City Schools’ Continuity of Learning Plan

Baltimore City Public Schools is committed to providing many options for families to continue learning for their children. The learning opportunities will arise from centrally-based systems and school-based interactions with families and students.

WE’LL SERVE STUDENTS USING THE FOLLOWING METHODS.

- Education and City Television Channels
- Online learning opportunities
- Learning Packets
- Online teacher/student/family platforms such as Google Classrooms
- Phone outreach for support of our youngest learners

K-8 LEARNING OPPORTUNITIES LESSONS

K-8 Learning Opportunities Lessons for both reading and math can be accessed through the Education and City TV Channels or online through the City Schools website. Daily, a child should watch a reading lesson for 40 minutes, a math lesson for 40 minutes, and expect to interact with their teacher for another 30 minutes. For social and studies and science, weekly activities will be provided and available online and through their teacher interaction.

HIGH SCHOOL LEARNING OPPORTUNITIES

High School Learning Opportunities Student learning packets will be provided each week to our emergency feeding sites as well. Grade band packets for newcomer/beginner ELs for English Language development are available. Additionally, for our gifted, advanced, and talented development learners grade band learning packets are available to support their specialized needs and customize learning to their interests.

SPECIAL EDUCATION OVERVIEW

Special Education Overview City Schools’ will provide access for students with disabilities to receive their specially designed instruction (SDI) to the maximum extent possible per State and Federal law. Introducing the terminology, Continuity of Learning Individualized Plan (CLIP), City Schools’ will create guidance documents and forms to ensure all students with a disability have a developed CLIP.

ESOL OVERVIEW

English for Speakers of Other Languages (ESOL) Overview English learners will continue to receive ESOL service in the form of English Language Development instruction with their ESOL Teachers and the support of ESOL Paraeducators and Assistants utilizing district supported distance learning platforms and learning packets.
